

Algerian microinverter standards

Overview

How does Algeria regulate products?

This entity primarily handles the deposit and registration of patents, trademarks, and copyrights. Multiple authorities regulate the conformity of imported products. For cosmetics and hygiene products, Algeria requires a compulsory declaration of ingredients, and the formula must be submitted to a toxicology lab for analysis.

Does Algeria require a toxicology lab?

For cosmetics and hygiene products, Algeria requires a compulsory declaration of ingredients, and the formula must be submitted to a toxicology lab for analysis. Should the production be completed abroad, companies must forward the details of the toxicology lab handling the tests to the appropriate Algerian authorities.

Do Algerian products need to be labeled in Arabic?

Algerian government regulations stipulate that imported products, particularly consumer goods, must be labeled in Arabic, and this regulation is strictly enforced. Though not required, it is helpful to label products in French.
